THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 2019 | May 1, 2019 | Today's Issue

Home World U.S. Politics Economy Business Tech Markets Opinion Arts Life Real Estate

Save on more at home. Shop now. Walmart

Top of Page | Print Edition | Video | Audio | Apps | Newsletters | Sign In

Macron and Le Pen Face Off in Pivotal French Election

Voters in France and across the continent are watching the election between centrist President Emmanuel Macron and his populist challenger Marine Le Pen to see which way the wind blows in the 2019 elections. WSJ

- Live Analysis: French Election
- Profiles of the Candidates

Yates Testimony to Shine Public Light on Mueller Probe

Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein and former deputy Sally Yates, former acting attorney general, are expected to testify publicly tomorrow morning in the most high-profile congressional appearance by officials involved in the probe into Russia. WSJ

North Korea Detains U.S. Citizen for 'Hostile Acts'

North Korea detained a U.S. citizen for what it said was hostile acts committed in Pyongyang, state media reported, the latest American to be caught in the country in recent months.

Warren Buffett Is Making Plans for a Lower Tax Bill

Berkshire Hathaway is preparing for investors to benefit from the lower corporate tax rate signed into law by President Donald Trump, Warren Buffett said in his annual letter to investors. WSJ

- Recap: Full Coverage of the Event

How Self-Driving Cars Could Fail Us

Lawmakers are trying to protect consumer data in the development of connected and autonomous vehicles, companies are testing the technology, making it harder to hack into cars. WSJ

- Autonomous Vehicles Spring Informed on Drivers
- Ford Model Shows at Lowell's Logistics Center
- Analysis: Report Brings Out an Issue for Tech Firms
- Bankruptcy Filed Against Uber

As IPOs Pick Up, Big Startups Hold Back

The market for IPOs is recovering, but so far, many companies are holding back from a debut on hanging back from a debut on hanging back from a debut on hanging