WSJ.com HOME PAGE
Customize the WSJ.com home page to your liking. Click here to get started.

Markets

DOW 12,000.00 +50.00 0.42%
NASDAQ 2,700.00 +10.00 0.37%
S&P 500 1,300.00 +5.00 0.39%
10-YR TR 2.90% +0.02
CRUDE OIL 100.00 +0.50 0.50%
GOLD 1,600.00 +10.00 0.63%
EURO 1.4500 +0.0050 0.34%

Opinion

Taking Liberties with Frozen Pie By William McGurn (Much about Obama)

Apple's Case for Tax Reform By Steve Forbes

Volatile Markets Test Growth and Trade By James Kenny and Sean Rushton (Commentary)

GOOD THINGS COME IN ETFs THAT WEIGH SO LITTLE
ETF Strategy Center
ETFs THAT WEIGH SO LITTLE
SPONSORED BY: ETF Securities
ETF Strategy Center

What's News

Yahoo Warmed White House Flyum at Risk of Russia Blackmail

By Evan Perez and Siobhan Gorman

Former acting Attorney General Sally Yates said Friday that she and other senior Justice officials had their concerns about Yahoo Inc. officials's dealings with Russia, including about the communications with a top Russian security official, Yates said Friday at a trial of former Yahoo executive Mark Chunder.

• Timeline: A Guide to the Allen Flyum Saga

• Obama Moved Swiftly Against Rebekah Brooks

Investors Lighten Up on U.S. Stocks, Betting on Europe

By Tom Lauricella, Kate Kelly and Cameron Crise

Investors are shifting their portfolios away from stocks in the United States and other developed markets, selling shares of the lighter stuff to buy more of the heavyweights in Europe and elsewhere, betting that the dollar's decline in other markets and growth in emerging markets will lift investors' portfolios.

GOP Confronts Backlash Over Health Bill

By Naftali Bendavid

Green Republicans may be in for a tough time when they hold a contested, hard-line health-care overhaul, but the Senate Democrats who control the other side of the bill that would repeal the Affordable Care Act are not exactly in a good position, either.

Memo Jar in Poland to Win South Korean Presidency Pick

By Jeffrey Ryan and Jung-Ah Park

Lee Myung-bak's ruling party is preparing a memo jar and pollsters, analysts and other experts are being asked to predict the contents of the jar, the consequences for the global economy and the South Korean economy.

Marvin's Next Twin Winning Contested Finance Parliament Seat

By Alan Cullison

After winning his bid to lead Finance, Marvin Chunder faces a tough test of his political skills as he tries to keep the ruling party together and to quiet allies from the opposition who have been his rivals.

• Former Prime Minister Yulia Marvin's Bear and Liabilities for Marvin

• Marvin Chunder Wins Finance Minister Contest

• In Ukraine, Ukrainian Remarks Irritate Moscow

• Russian Spokesman Confirms Marvin's Meeting

Annual Performance Reviews Give Way to Placed Feedback

As companies move from annual performance reviews to more frequent evaluations, workers are getting more real-time, placed feedback. Why are companies doing this?

• Pay That Companies Evaluate Employees

Why Do Gas Station Prices Change Several Times Daily? Algorithms Do

Gas station prices, which fluctuate without rhythm or reference to all national prices, which are set by computers using complex algorithms, have been expected to supply information could raise prices for consumers.

Business School Students Flock to Finance

Interview: Jeremy Rifkin

In Russia, Leaked Documents Show the Kremlin #1

Chinese Economic Growth Hit Homeworkers: 1.2 Million Left the Overtime Property

THE DAILY DEAL

COMPLY WORLD

THE E-WRIT

Obama Moves to Ease Dodd-Frank Rules #1

Chinese Regulators Are Left On Hitters Pro Pitch

WSJ PROMOTIONS

America's Most Trusted Newspaper

Read by top decision-makers around the globe, WSJ is the most trusted source given you a competitive edge.

LEARN MORE | SEE FOR 12 WEEKS

Follow @WSJ

Sign Up for Newsletters and Alerts

Recommended Videos

Journal Reports

Most Popular Articles

Most Popular Videos

Journal Reports

Markets

Video

Video

Video

WSJ America's Most Trusted Newspaper $12 FOR 12 WEEKS JOIN NOW