

FBI's Comey misstated key Clinton email evidence, say people close to investigation

During a hearing last week, FBI Director James B. Comey offered new details about what agents found after they realized a laptop belonging to former congressman Anthony Weiner, husband of Huma Abedin, contained thousands of work emails involving Hillary Clinton. People close to the investigation said that Clinton aide Abedin did not forward emails to Weiner regularly and only a small number of forwarded emails were deemed to contain classified information.

Could your local TV news start providing more conservative views? It might if it is a Sinclair station.

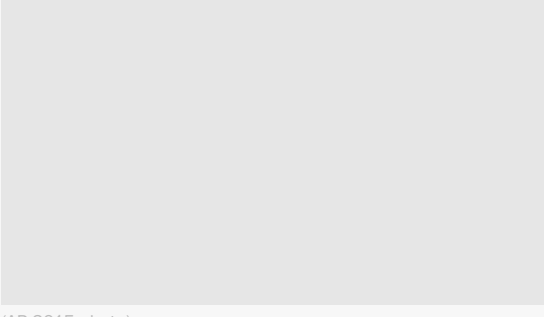

While partisan coverage is a familiar staple of cable networks, it remains mostly unheard of in broadcast TV. But that may change with the expansion of Sinclair Broadcast Group, which has a reputation for conservative-leaning content and will soon enter the largest markets in the country, including N.Y. and Los Angeles.

Pulitzer Prize-winning reporting: Uncovering Trump

In February 2016, presidential candidate Donald Trump promised $6 million in donations, including $1 million from his own pocket, to charities along his campaign trail. Months later, he had donated far less than he pledged. Post reporter David A. Fahrenthold went in search of the missing money and found a bigger story than he ever expected.
