Trump says Paris attack will have ‘big effect’ on French vote

The president did not elaborate in his tweet on how the latest apparent Islamist-linked violence could sway Sunday’s vote, but far-right candidate Marine Le Pen has raised many of the same anti-immigrant and security issues that were pushed by Trump during his campaign.

The back-and-forth about conservative pundit Ann Coulter’s planned appearance at the university in this liberal haven comes after repeated violent outbursts at protests and speeches on this campus and elsewhere since President Trump’s election.

He robbed banks and went to prison. His time there put him on track for a new job: Georgetown law professor.

Shon Hopwood’s new job as a tenure-track faculty member is only the latest improbable twist in a remarkable life. He probably never would have found the law, he said, if he had not gone to prison.

Pulitzer Prize-winning reporting: Uncovering Trump

In February 2016, presidential candidate Donald Trump promised $6 million in donations, including $1 million from his own pocket, to charities along his campaign trail. But by the time he won the New Hampshire primary, he had stopped giving away money and had donated far less than his pledged amount. Post reporter David A. Fahrenthold went in search of the missing money and found a bigger story than he ever expected.
