The Biggest Barrier to Rebuilding America's Infrastructure Is Red Tape

By Liz Peek

President Trump promised a $1 trillion infrastructure program; he has yet to deliver. That's a good thing. We don't need billions of taxpayer dollars tossed at politically appetizing projects, as...

How the Government Is Making It Harder for You to Retire

By Eric Pianin

Many Americans have saved shockingly little for their retirements, with one study showing that the median savings for households near retirement age is just $17,000. In the coming years, tens of...

Does your company continuously update employees about data security best practices?

By IBM

Studies show hackers penetrate companies via people more often than through systems. Here's how to make employees more aware.

Bad News on Student Loans: They Stick With You Longer Than You Think

By Beth Braverman

While the standard student loan repayment plan for federal loans lasts 10 years, many students end up making payments over a longer time period.

The Question Nobody's Asking: What If the GOP Can't Get a Health Law Passed?

By Rob Garver

Republicans in Washington are taking a massive risk when it comes to health insurance policy, and it's separate and apart from passing a bill through the House of Representatives restructuring the US...

10,000 Boomers Turn 65 Every Day. Can Medicare and Social Security Handle It?

By Eric Pianin

By the time the last of this generation approaches retirement age in 2029, 18 percent of the U.S. will be at least that age, the Pew Research Center projects. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid...

If Pastors Want to Play Politics, Churches Should Pay Taxes

By Ciro Scotti

Like so much that is served up in the White House mess, the Executive Order on religious liberty signed by the President last week is all sizzle and no ribeye. Its purported purpose was to allow...

Who's Watching Wall Street? The Feds Turn a Blind Eye to Goldman's Game

By David Dayen

Why are House Republicans working so hard to repeal Wall Street reform when regulators have shown so much willingness to neglect tougher laws?

Sally Yates Hearing on Russian Meddling: An Odd Display of Senatorial Bluster

By Rob Garver

The much-anticipated testimony of former acting Attorney General Sally Yates and former Director of National Intelligence James Clapper before the Senate Judiciary Committee revealed a huge gulf...

How Much Further Can the Unemployment Rate Drop?

By Jeff Spross, TheWeek.com

How low can unemployment go? It's a question Americans are no doubt excited to see answered. And the latest jobs report showed the unemployment rate falling from 4.5 percent in March to 4.4 percent...

3 Government Programs That Are Dangerously in the Red

By Eric Pianin

The Government Accountability Office says there are major programs receiving scant attention that are draining the Treasury and that could pose long-term challenges to the nation's fiscal stability.
