Looming
Gorsuch Votes
Put Red-State
Democrats in a
Bind

A sharply divided Senate this week will vote on Judge Neil Gorsuch's Supreme Court nomination, with Democrats in red-leaning states put in the position of choosing between a Republican-nominated judge and their party's wish to block President Trump. 351

Rethinking the Widely Held 2% Inflation Target

Inflation has finally returned to the Federal Reserve's 2% goal after undershooting it for nearly five years. Now, just as the central bank has inflation where it wants it, economists and central bankers are starting to think the goal itself was a mistake.

Europe Deal Value Pushed Sharply Higher, Despite China's Pullback

After more than tripling last year, Chinese acquisitions in Europe fell 87% in the first quarter, but a drive by North American and European companies to boost profits has pushed deal value in Europe sharply higher in the first three months of 2017.

Fading Fears Over Trade Policy Power Overseas Rebound

Investors are dialing back expectations for a major shift in U.S. trade policy, fueling a sharp rebound in the prices of some early targets of President Donald Trump's rhetoric. 80

Active Managers Stage a Comeback

As more actively managed funds beat their benchmarks, some investors are optimistic that conditions are right for their resurgence to continue, eventually slowing the flow of money into lower-cost index-tracking funds, a trend that has hounded active funds in recent years.
