

Trump Stars On Stage He Built Himself, Far From Washington

This president speaks from platforms of his own choosing, apart from the usual venues of power. Creating a split-screen on his 100th day in office, Trump could inhabit and speak to a separate reality.

Trump Holds Rally In Pennsylvania As Journalists Gather At Annual D.C. Dinner

Photo: Justin Sullivan/Getty Images

NPR thanks our sponsors

Become an NPR sponsor

Trump's Absence Loomed Large At Annual White House Correspondents' Dinner

The gathering of D.C. journalists, which had been a top draw for Hollywood celebrities during the Obama administration, took on a different air this year as the new president decided not to attend.

AP Photo/Chris Wedel

LATEST FROM NPR NEWS

Dozens Hospitalized, Several Killed As Tornadoes Hit East Texas

Marine Le Pen Aligns Herself With Mainstream Onetime Rival

Marchers Unite To Take On Trump's Climate Policies

People Are Reporting Criminal (Space) Aliens To New ICE Hotline

Paradise Lost: Luxury Music Festival Turns Out To Be Half-Built Scene Of Chaos

MORE NEWS

LATEST NEWSCAST

Listen - 5:00

CONNECT WITH NPR

Podcast Directory

Email Newsletters

NPR on Facebook

@npr on Twitter

President Trump's First 100 Days, In Photos

As President Donald Trump crosses the 100-day marker this weekend, photographer Gabriela Demczuk explores some of the major events that have transpired in the White House and on Capitol Hill.

Photo: Gabriela Demczuk

The Surprising Wishes Of India's Sex Workers

A researcher found that some of them don't want to be "rescued." And that in one community, sex work is a traditional occupation for married women.

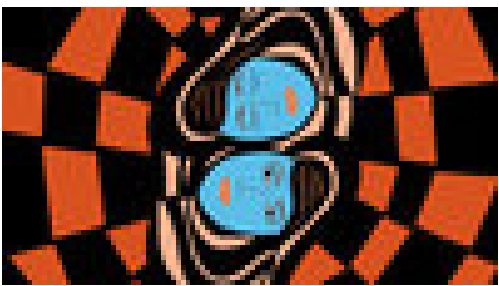

Photo: Sarah-Jane Smith

'Paradise Lost': How The Apple Became The Forbidden Fruit

Some 350 years ago, Milton's epic chronicled the Fall of Man, wrought by the red fruit. Except that it might've been a fig or peach or pear. An ancient Roman made a pun - and the apple myth was born.

Photo: Wiki Commons

4 Years After Rana Plaza Tragedy, What's Changed For Bangladeshi Garment Workers?

Four years after the deadliest garment factory disaster, a new report by Human Rights Watch finds that many global apparel companies have not signed a transparency pledge regarding its supply chains.

Photo: Human Rights Watch

Being A Guinea Pig For Science Can Be A Long, Slow Slog

Brandie Jefferson volunteered for a clinical trial to see if intermittent fasting can help treat multiple sclerosis. Five months in, she realizes that this study won't answer that question.

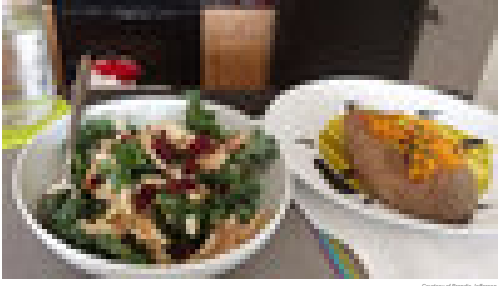

Photo: Brandie Jefferson

What We Learned About The Mood Of Trump's Tweets

How angry or happy were President Trump's tweets during his first 100 days? This last week was not a particularly positive one, according to a sentiment analysis.

Listen - 2:56

Photo: David McKeon

A Trauma Nurse Reflects On 'Compassion Fatigue'

Years of treating grievously injured people starts to wear on a person, a trauma nurse in Minneapolis says. She explores "compassion fatigue" in a semi-autobiographical poem.

Listen - 2:25

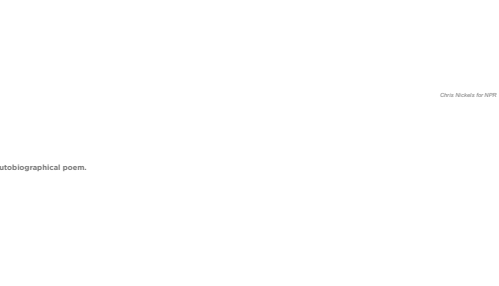

Photo: David McKeon

These Short Films Shine A Spotlight On Sexual Harassment

Small playwright David Aja teamed up with her friend David Schickman to produce #ThatsHarassment. The short films - some inspired by her own experiences - aim to clarify what harassment is.

Listen - 9:37

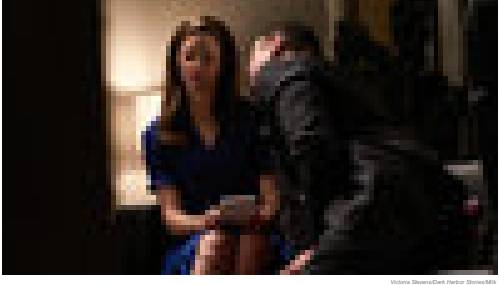

Photo: David Schickman

Is Facebook Real Life Or Is It Just Fantasy?

Dear Super Badick: a podcast offering "radical empathy" and advice for the best, lovely and heartbreak. Today the hosts hear from a woman in an "emotional affair" with a college friend on Facebook.

Photo: David McKeon

PHOTOS: See The Sweeping American Landscapes Under Review By Trump

President Trump has ordered the Department of the Interior to review the status of at least 20 national monuments. Here's a visual guide to the landscapes now in Trump's sights.

Photo: David McKeon

Heavy Rotation: 10 Songs Public Radio Can't Stop Playing

Hear new music by country veterans Marty Stuart, former Gospel frontwoman Beth Ditto, psychedelic hip-hop duo Shabazz Palaces and more in April's playlist, curated by public-radio hosts.

Listen - 4:05

Photo: David McKeon

In Utah, How You Tread Through This Canyon Matters

In Utah's Canyon country, federal land managers are partially lifting a ban on off-road vehicle travel through an area that's prized for its sensitive Native American cultural sites.

Listen - 3:46

Photo: David McKeon

The First 100 Days: 'A Standard That Not Even Roosevelt Achieved'

Photo: David McKeon

Listen 4:05

Trump's 100-Day Plan, Annotated: Where His Promises Stand

U.S.

Meet The Teenage Girl Who Wants to Be A Boy Scout

WNYC RADIO

Sixteen-year-old Sydney Ireland has been an unofficial Boy Scout for more than a decade. Now she's petitioning the organization for the right to earn merit badges along with her male Trump mates.

Listen 5:06

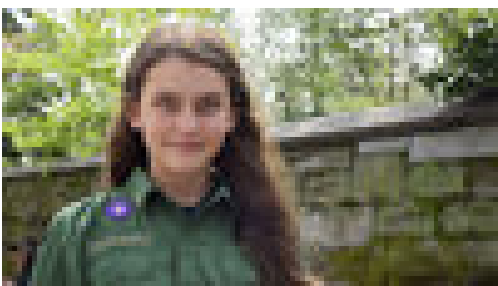

Photo: Michael Grecco/WNYC

ALL TECH CONSIDERED

In 'The Circle', What We Give Up When We Share Ourselves

The film, based on the book by Dave Eggers, presents a dystopian view of where Silicon Valley is taking the world and captures the tech industry's failure to acknowledge the downside of its creations.

Photo: David Laundy/Netflix

CODE SWITCH

Walking In Their Footsteps At A Former Japanese Internment Camp

"I wanted to see Manzanar with my own eyes, so that my understanding of history might feel deeper through the experience of place."

Video: NPR to NPR

more stories

news >

arts & life >

music >

back to top

homepage

news

arts & life

music

programs

about

help

contact

terms of use

privacy

sponsorship choices

text-only

© 2017 npr