'Peak TV' paradox: Why so much great TV has become bad news for writers

Many Hollywood writers are experiencing an unexpected side effect of what has become a flood of ambitious television: a steep pay cut. The median pay for television writers has declined 23 percent in three years, according to one of the unions representing 12,000 writers that plan to go on strike as early as midnight Monday if a new contract is not reached.

Trump's abrupt shifts on trade throw allies off balance

Canadian and Mexican officials were blindsided by the president's announcement on NAFTA. By late Wednesday, the crisis had been averted, and all that was left of the plan to withdraw from the agreement was a mood of triumphalism at the White House, and a renewed wave of unease and indignation across America's neighbors.
