Kelli O'Hara will take a short trip to the mystical world of "Brigadoon," for a concert staging of the musical at City Center, the theater announced.

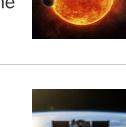

3h

Australia's prime minister plans to introduce tough new requirements for would-be citizens, including stricter standards for English-language proficiency, an "Australian values" test and a four-year wait.

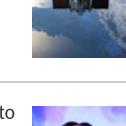

8h

After Juventus sent Barcelona out of the Champions League, the temptation is to declare that the sun has set on a golden era of European soccer. That would be a mistake.

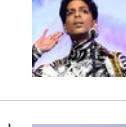

8h

Sony's contract to market and distribute the Bond films expired in 2015. So it made a pitch to continue, using a recreated set from the 1963 movie "Dr. No."

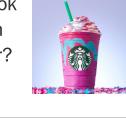

11h

With the police at his apartment door seeking to arrest him, a Brooklyn man solicited viewers on Facebook Live. He turned off the camera just before falling 11 stories and dying.

13h

In a revival of "The Little Foxes" that our theater critic calls nimble and exhilarating, Cynthia Nixon and Laura Linney swap lead roles on alternating performances.

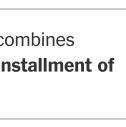

14h

Perhaps inadvertently, Serena Williams revealed that she's pregnant. Confirmation of the news led to speculation that she was pregnant when she won the Australian Open.

16h

Five filmmakers competed for $1 million to make a feature that will premiere at next year's Tribeca Film Festival. The winner's film is on the back stories of email scammers.

19h

A largely inaccessible rock off the coastline of the Shetland Islands is technically part of Scotland, but one man is attempting to make it a sovereign state named Forvik.

20h

A newly discovered planet, about 40 light years from Earth, may be the most promising place yet to search for signs of life beyond the solar system, say astronomers.

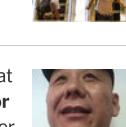

21h

A large asteroid soared narrowly — by cosmic standards — past Earth on Wednesday. At 1.1 million miles, it was the closest miss in years, NASA scientists said.
